Title- Knowing Your “Why?” Exploring Self-Authorship and Public Narrative

Abstract: Understanding your interests and motivations is important for influencing others to take action. Your “story of self” connects the values that drive you to the positive change you’re trying to inspire. In an activity adapted from the works of Marshall Ganz of Harvard University, you’ll be asked to consider how you communicate your own story and how to find shared values and interests within a diverse community. Join us for a session that explores beliefs, identity, and social relations.
